

In the same boat

In a way ... “we are in the same boat” ... but we all face some unique /local challenges in different places/times/situations. At the same time, we all face universal (Human) challenges that are the same or similar for everybody. We are, at the sometime, different and unique, and yet universally the same to a large extent, from the need to breath, to many other necessities and feelings, etc. That’s why I believe and support The Universal Rights of Man /Woman/Humanity, in democracy, in free speech/free opinions and choices (as a general idea), free rights to assemble, and in private individual rights, religious believes...etc.

I also believe that each country has its own religion(s), culture and history. Even its own destiny... Finally, I want to say clearly, that if I travel to ten (10) different countries, I will like to experience ten (10) different cultures/music/histories/foods/arts, etc. If we destroy all nations and cultures in order to create mash humanity, like mash potatoes... I am not with the program. I am not for smashed humanity. I believe in a strong humanity, with strong human rights, with strong family values, with strong communities among many other strong communities, in a democratic, intelligent way, with respect and dignity for all. I do not believe that if 51% of all the people decide that they don’t like the other 49% of the people on an issue/choice shall do what they want to do to them... (Even Democracy has its own limits and defects... I will cover those in a separated article)

No, I believe that only when we are united in the understanding of universal human principles, rights and laws (correct laws, impartial universal laws, not so favorable for this one group or that another group, etc.) we can live a good live together (without parasitism and predation). I believe that we can agree to disagree in many decisions/ preferences and choices... and reach a humane democratic society were people rise out of mediocrity, decadence and darkness...

Out of misery... I believe, it is a duty, an obligation for everybody, to try to fulfill he’s/her own potential and help those around them in a humane way to do the same. I believe the 10 Commitments plus the 15 Guide Lines of Man will give us the 26th point, the result, in total reality. A totality of ONE...A total way to travel (“in the same boat”), in being and becoming...Evolution... For us and for the Planet Earth... our home...

Until next time, with respect Robert Freemann
